To the friends of Temperance and the public generally we now make our appeal in behalf of this paper. The publisher feeling it a matter of importance to the interest of the Temperance cause in the District, as well as the general interest of the cause, and having been, as he conceives, Providentially placed in a situation at this time when he can mingle this interest with that of the business men, and thereby render a double service to the community, and still further open a medium of communication by which our principles may be extended far and wide, at a cheap rate, he has purchased a printing establishment, so as not only to be able to put a daily paper regularly to press, but also a weekly; and still further, be able to do any other printing the public may be pleased to have done; and he assures them that they shall have no cause of complaint. He has made arrangements by which he can devote his time to the interest of the office and the paper; and, having employed Mr. Charles W.
Fenton, who will be always on the spot, to conduct the printing, he has no doubt but that general satisfaction will be given. We shall make arrangements to have the earliest news; also the proceedings of Congress.

We wish all who are indebted for the paper up to this time to pay up, as the affairs of the tri-weekly must be closed. They will perceive that we are about to give them a better paper, double the number, at the same price.

While the "COLUMBIAN FOUNTAIN" will be devoted to the cause of Temperance, its columns will be enriched by original articles on subjects calculated to interest, instruct, and benefit its readers. It is intended so to blend variety, amusement, and instruction, as that the various tastes of its patrons may be (as far as it is practicable) gratified.
Commerce, Literature, and Science, and every other subject of interest, not inconsistent with Temperance and morality, will receive the earnest attention of the publishers.
Nothing of a sectarian, political, or personal character will be admitted.

A CARD.

THE subscriber begs leave to say to members of Congress and others, that he has several good rooms which he will let on accommodating terms, either furnished or unfurnished, located on the South side of Pennsylvania avenue, between 9th and 10th streets, and equidistant between the Capitol and the public offices. I have also two of the best cellars in the city, which I will rent in part or the whole, or receive goods on storage.
This is a good opportunity for butchers or market people.

L. S. BECK.

JUST FROM THE MINT!!!

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

L. S. BECK & SON, would take this method of notifying the citizens of Washington and the adjacent counties of Maryland and Virginia, that they have commenced the house furnishing business in all its various branches, on Pennsylvania avenue, South side, between 9th and 10th streets, where they intend keeping a constant supply of new and second hand goods, and promise to sell on the most reasonable terms. We therefore, solicit a call from our friends and the public generally, as we intend selling at a VERY SLIGHT PROFIT. We would enumerate in part the following: Ivory, Buck and Cocoa handled knives and forks; White, Black and Brown

WILLIAM WOODSWORTH THE STATESMAN.

By the author of "The Exile's Grave," "The Retrospect," "Sketches," &c. &c.

PART VI.—THE LETTER.

As waters glass a distant star,
We woo some light from Heaven afar,
And, imaged in our soul, we dream,
The wave that yawns arrests the beam; Hushed in a false content we stray,
And glide, perchance to gloom, away.

Bulwer.

'Twas noonday. Charles' wife and child were sitting together in the portico of their home. She had just received a letter from her husband, in which he spoke joyfully of his success and popularity in the Capitol, of the numerous friends he had obtained; was warm in the professions of his unflintering esteem and love, and appointed a day for his return home. The fond wife's eye glistered with satisfaction, a joyful smile illuminated her lovely features; and she was happy—happy in the expectation of shortly seeing him whom she loved with all the fondness, strength, and devotion of a woman's love. A woman "loves and loves forever." Her affection springs from the breast, uninvoked by the wand of hope, unadulterated by the touch of interest. Woman's love is a limpid and lovely flow of feeling, which gushes from the fountainhead of purity and courses the heart, through sordid passion, unmingling and unsullied.

How much happiness was in store for Maria?

Her Charles would soon cheer and make happy her home and domestic duties, again would they stray together over their familiar walks, through woody groves, and by murmuring streams. Oh! ye brilliant hopes of wife! Why are you so deceitful? Why do ye bloom and flourish only to fade away.

PART VII.—THE DUEL.

"Behold that weak, deluded man, Pressed on by vengeance dire,
With rage emboldened in his breast,
An eye of rolling fire.
Swift to false-honor's field he flies,
His valor to display,
To meet his once loved bosom friend,
In horrid, murderous fray."

Morning dawned. Charles rose early and was soon with his second, on the fatal ground. His opponent not then appearing, he had leisure for reflection, which he improved. He considered the probable consequences of the unreasonable step he had taken; murder would most probably be the result. He knew Woodsworth's implacable hatred towards him, which now held the place of love; and was confident he would not be satisfied until either the one or the other fell. If Woodsworth fell, and by his hand, his future life would become embittered. He would return to his innocent home a murderer, and would not only attach to himself an eternal odium, but heap disgrace upon all the innocent objects of his affection. And on the other hand, if he fell—which was most likely—his wife and children would be left unprotected, unprotected in the wide world, and his own brilliant, long cherished hopes of fame and happiness, would be at once dispelled. And oh! while these painful reflections crossed his mind, how bitterly did he repent his folly in thus placing himself in the duelist's power. But he had advanced too far to retreat, according to the world's delusive idea of honor.

Woodsworth and his second appeared on the ground. Salutations and other ceremonies having passed between the seconds, the combatants were placed at their stations.
Their arms, which were to send the death-dealing bullets, were prepared and given to them. They were ready. The sun which had risen with unusual brilliancy and splendor, now hid himself behind a dark, portentous cloud, as if to shun the sight of the approaching, disgraceful deed.
The words were given: one—two—three—fire. The pistols were discharged.
"I have done his work for him," in an agitated tone, Woodsworth remarked.
For a moment neither stirred; but presently a shudder seemed to pass through the frame of Clifford—he trembled, tottered, and turning a last fond and agonising look toward his distant home, he fell to the ground a bloody corpse.

PART VIII.—THE MANIAC.

Distraught! In phrenzy! Her reason too weak To withstand such a conflict of passion and fear; Abandon'd its throne—o'er her once blooming cheek Came the pale hue of death; with a loud piercing shriek
She swoon'd in convulsive despair!

And now, o'er the scenes of her childhood, forsaking All pleasure and mirth, she a maniac goes;
A wanderer wretched, of grief deeply partaking; While in tears of deep sorrow, her heart, as if breaking, Unbosoms its keenly felt woes.

FROM A MS. POEM.

It was evening: a fine, balmy evening, and the one upon which Clifford was to have returned home. Not far from his mansion, seated upon a moss-covered rock, near the river side, sat the fond Maria, having her son playing beside her, gazing on the great luminary sinking to repose in his sky-curtained couch, and musing on past delights. She preferred the soft, serene, and silent hour of the setting sun, when the clustering clouds are painted in varie-gated tints by the farewell smile of the glorious luminary, as it was there that she and Charles used to ruminate, with mingled sensations of joy, on scenes consecrated by recollection and endeared by association.

At such an hour of holy repose, when the last rays of light die away, when the sun takes off his fiery diadem and deposits it in a casket of clouds; and when the gladdened stars dance through ether—the remembrance of him she loved—of times for ever past! stole upon the sensibility of her soul, like a strain of native music in a strange clime, on the ear of a disconsolate exile.

Maria and child were watching intently for a view of the vessel which was to restore to them their absent husband and father. At length the boy raised his little hands and joyfully exclaimed—

"See, dear mother, see, the vessel comes, and father will soon be here."

The vessel neared, and approached the shore. Maria stood upon the bank, waiting with glistering eye and throbbing heart, the landing of her beloved Charles; but he came not. At length some one jumped on shore: her heart beat quick; but it was only a boatman. He delivered her a letter: it bore a black seal! She hastily tore it open and commenced reading. It told her ALL. She read to the end—without discussing any agitation, save that a deadly pale ness overspread her face—but when she had finished, the letter dropped from her hands, and uttering a shriek, she fell to the earth. A few hours restored her to life, but not to reason: the iron had entered her soul; and bid fair ere long to do its work. She became a maniac, and for days and nights wandered to and fro about the neighborhood, an object of grief and pity. But this did not last long; she was soon missing, and though diligent search was made, no trace of her could be discovered. When last seen, she was straying beside the river, and had most probably perished in its waves.

(To be concluded.)

We subscribe to every article if the testimonial be laid down by our friends of the Massachusetts Cataract, in the paragraph below. A strict adherence to it in practice would soon prove itself a most happy event for the community. Will not our friends in the District try the experiment?

OUR TEE-TOTAL CREED. For the DRUNKARD, in all cases, Moral Suasion toxicating drink selling establishments to those of an opposite and tee-total character.

Leather, Leather, Leather.

THE subscriber, Thos. G. Ford, returns his thanks to his friends and the consumers of Leather in general, for the liberal patronage he has received since he opened his Leather and Cur-rying store, on the corner of 7th and G streets.— He would respectfully inform them that he has now a full assortment of his own finish on hand, and which he can recommend as equal to any in the District, which will be sold on the most reasonable terms.

The stock consists of Sole Leather and Skirting, and very superior Calf Skins, upper and kippis, Harness and Bridle, and bags' Leather, &c. All his Leather being tanned expressly for the establishment, he feels confident, with his practical knowledge of the business in all its branches, he can give general satisfaction.

of Languages.
DAVID GILBERT, M. D., Lecturer on Anatomy and Physiology.
Rev. J. G. MORRIS, D. D., Lecturer on Zoology.
WM. ALBAUGH, A. M., Tutor and Teacher in Preparatory Department.
H. R. GEIGER, Teacher of Writing.

The course of studies in Pennsylvania College is as extensive and substantial as that of any institution in the country. The Preparatory Department provides for instruction in all the branches of a thorough English business education, in addition to the Elements of the Mathematics and Classical Literature. The College course is arranged in the four classes usual in the institutions of this country.

The government of the students is as energetic as their circumstances seem to require. They attend at least two recitations a day, and the Faculty contemplate increasing them to three, Church and Bible Class on the Sabbath, and are visited in their rooms so frequently as to preclude the danger of any great irregularities. It is believed no institution in the United States has more exemplary young men in connexion with it. They are all required to lodge in the College edifice, special cases excepted.

The annual expenses are—for board, tuition and room rent, during the winter session $61 87 1-2; for the summer session, $41 87 1-2; washing, $10; wood, $3 00. Total expense, $116 75. Boarding can be had in town at $1 25 per week.

There are two vacations in the year, commencing on the third Thursdays of April and September; each of five weeks continuance.

The summer session will commence on Thursday, the 22d of May. The annual commencement takes place on the third Thursday in September.

The Trustees have recently made various arrangements which will increase the efficiency of the Institution. They have increased the number of Professors and provided for the most ample instruction of the students.

Professor Baugher and Haupt are prepared to board boys and to exercise a special supervision over their studies and deportment, and Parents who may prefer placing their sons under their care, will be secure in regard to their proper management, under arrangements such as pertain to the family circle.
